

LRNA Suite of Revolutionary Education

Imagine yourself walking into a restaurant to order dim sum, the Chinese street food, where service staff wheel carts around to the tables and you point at what you'd like to try. Now imagine that instead of char sieu bao, sieu mai, or wu kok or other tasty morsels, the options are bundles of educational resources that you can choose to help in your daily work. Something that will help you in talking with other revolutionaries within the movements in which you are active. Something that will help you and your revolutionary comrades carry out the life work to which you are committed, that will help you change the world.

Well, that's exactly what the LRNA "Revolutionary Education" suite of resources has to offer. We are sharing them here so that LRNA and other revolutionaries can use them to deepen the inseparable connection between revolutionaries and the spontaneous movement. Our goal on this page is to establish a dialogue. LRNA wants to be able to share its decades of experience, and enrich that experience with the understanding of other revolutionaries. The Organization Resolution from our 2019 Convention says it this way:

In times like these, revolutionaries are asking profound questions about the path ahead. In our committees and the organization as a whole we study, discuss and debate. We share experience and analysis from scattered battlefronts and localities. The on-going back-and-forth transmission of information and analysis assures that our understanding and policy reflect the real world and change as the world changes. This enables the organization to sum up the questions facing the struggle ahead, concentrate our resources and energy for maximum effectiveness, and to guide our work as the struggle advances.

When you visit this page you will find buttons that will take you to materials used by LRNA collectives around the country for specific purposes that you can adapt (or use as is) to construct the discussion you want to have to achieve your objectives. You will find materials that have been recorded for later viewing and listening, where you (or the collective to which you belong) can hear what other revolutionaries think. Or you can find a portal to ongoing LRNA educationals that are live webinars or interactive discussions on topics of the day or questions of the revolution. You will also find some ideas on methodology you may want to adapt or adopt - i.e., how collectives have arrived at the process of developing the educational materials that they have used. You will find links to sources that revolutionaries have found helpful to understand the world around them.

The purpose of course is not just to understand the world, but to change it. This is an exciting time of expanding revolutionary change. This page will be a dynamic page. As we find materials to be no longer useful for contemporary issues, we'll remove them or archive them where they can be accessed for later use as necessary. As you experiment with the material on this site, we hope you will send us new material to add.